53 students were awarded undergraduate research assistantships with 22 faculty through 6 funding sources, namely the Howard Hughes Medical Institute (HHMI), the Gonzaga Science Research Program (GSRP), the St. Francis Research Assistantship, the Anna Marie Ledgerwood Endowment, the Slobogean Arts & Sciences Research Award, and faculty research grants from the National Science Foundation. 86 students applied for the positions.

Students groups presented research to peers and professors at weekly luncheons. Angie Hinz is Research Coordinator.

Gonzaga Science Research Program (GSRP)

Under GSRP, 20 CAS science majors performed research projects under 5 GU faculty. Students received $4,400 stipends; faculty received $6,000 stipends and $1,000 per month toward supplies. The 20 GSRP positions are funded through University resources.

Off-Campus Research Experience (OCRE)

Funded through HHMI, OCRE provided 5 CAS science majors the opportunity to experience the "research-intense" environment of large research universities.

Students received a salary of $10 an hour for up to 440 hours, a housing allowance, and travel assistance. Two students performed research at University of California, San Francisco, and one each at University of Idaho, Montana State University, and Auburn University.

Seattle Summer Biomedical Internship (SSBI)

Sponsored by the Swedish Medical Center Foundation through the Mayberg Educational Fund in partnership with Gonzaga, 8 College of Arts & Sciences students participated in paid internships at independent research programs, including studies of medical treatments, evaluations of diagnostic practices and patient education studies.

Modern Languages Department

StarTalk

54 1st - 12th graders studied Chinese at Gonzaga University from June 20th - July 8th at no cost or low cost thanks to an $89,822 grant from StarTalk, a federal program designed to foster interest in less commonly taught languages such as Chinese, Arabic and Hindi.

This is the eighth year Gonzaga’s Modern Languages has secured the StarTalk grant.

Professor Ben Semple is program director, adjunct instructor Yvonne Quigley served as lead instructor, and Cory Kittrell worked as program assistant.

Religious Studies Department

Francis Youth Institute

In the first year of this program funded by the Lilly Endowment, the Francis Youth Institute welcomed 21 high-school students from Washington and Idaho to Gonzaga University for a week-long institute on the intersection of theology and ecology. The students stayed in Gonzaga residence halls and were guided in the week by 8 GU students, 5 of whom are enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences.

FYO was co-directed by Associate Professor Joseph Mudd and Associate Professor Anastasia Wendlinger. Mudd and Wendlinger led sessions with the students and were joined by Professor Brian Hennig of Philosophy and Environmental Studies, Associate Professor Ellen Maccarone of Philosophy, and Assistant Professor Shannon Dunn and Professor Patrick McCormick of Religious Studies.

This summer the Department of Religious Studies also welcomed 25 graduate students to campus for the residency portions of their Master of Arts in Theology and Leadership program. These students came from states across the nation: New Jersey, Alaska, New Mexico, Minnesota, Texas, California, Oregon, Colorado, and Washington.

Debate

Under Director of Debate Glen Frappier, the Gonzaga Debate Institute hosted approximately 190 students for a six-week program (40 students), a five-week program (45 students), a four-week program (45 students), and a two-week program (70 students). The various programs offered a range of options for students of different experience and skill levels.

The institute was staffed by academics and professionals from across the country, including several Gonzaga alumni.

Current members of Gonzaga’s debate team served as coaches and support staff throughout the summer’s sessions.
